Over the years, Martin, with his tousled black hair, became a familiar figure to newspaper readers and much later to television viewers.

But as is the case with politics, Martin made enemies. In 1959, when a cloaked revolt within his own party nearly ruined him, he was tumbled down as House GOP leader by Charles Halleck of Indiana.

Senator Beatty's Widow, 90, Dies

Mrs. Richard A. Beatty (Rose McClurkin), 90, longtime resident of Bowling Green and active in its social, civic and political life, died Sunday in Princeton, Ind.

Descended from one of the original pioneer families of the Indiana territory, she was the widow of Mr. Beatty, who was a member of the Ohio Senate from Bowling Green from 1905 to 1911 and who also was a leader in locating the what is now Bowling Green State University. He was long identified with the early oil interests of Wood County as a broker and producer.

Senator Beatty, a Democrat, died Jan. 12, 1920 in California, where he had gone for his health.

The Beatty home in Bowling Green was at 135 N. Grove St.

Mrs. Beatty continued to live there after the death of her husband until 1932 when she became superintendent of the Girls Industrial School at Delaware, a position she held until 1941.

That year she became superintendent of the academic school at the Tennessee Vocational School in Tullahoma and in 1945 she joined the staff of

Her funeral and burial were in Princeton Wednesday.

Deaths And Funerals

Former Speaker Joseph Martin Dies At 83

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI)—Joseph W. Martin, the congressman who molded all fractions of the Republican party into a tight-knit group, died Wednesday night at the age of 83.

The North Attleboro, Mass. publisher who rose from newsboy to speaker of the House, was dead on arrival at a hospital after collapsing at the home of relatives.

Martin came to power in the GOP when the Republican party was at one of its lowest levels. He was credited with giving the GOP minority much more muscle than its numbers would have indicated after the 1938 elections when the split was 262-169.

Martin served as speaker in 1947-49 and 1953-55. Because of his popularity and increasing power Martin was considered a strong dark-horse for a 1948 presidential candidate. Friends said such a possibility "frightened him."

He walked into the nation's Capitol as a representative of the 69th Congress in 1925. He waged long and unceasing wars as minority leader, keeping the GOP in full force on the floor to make up for the Democratic absenteeism and fostering a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats by persuading his followers to forego personal attacks and keep the party united.

Over the years, Martin, with his tousled black hair, became a familiar figure to newspaper readers and much later to television viewers.

But as is the case with politics, Martin made enemies. In 1959, when a cloaked revolt within his own party nearly ruined him, he was tumbled down as House GOP leader by Charles Halleck of Indiana.

Senator Beatty's Widow, 90, Dies

Mrs. Richard A. Beatty (Rose McClurkin), 90, longtime resident of Bowling Green and active in its social, civic and political life, died Sunday in the Massachusetts Reformatory of Women at Framingham.

Through her work, Mrs. Beatty became a leader in the field of juvenile delinquency and served on several national committees concerned with the problem.

In 1947, at the age of 70, Mrs. Beatty returned to Princeton, Ind., where she became district manager for World Book Encyclopedia. She retired at 75.

Mrs. Beatty continued her interest in club work in Princeton, serving for many years as historian for the Daughters of the American Revolution chapter there.

Born in Gibson County, Ind., April 19, 1877, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McClurkin (Amanda Howe). Her father was a veteran of the Civil War and her mother was a Civil War nurse, credited with being the first woman in Vicksburg after the northern victory there.

Mrs. Beatty was a graduate of Western College for Women, Oxford, and the University of Michigan. She taught in Princeton, Ind., before her marriage.

Her funeral and burial were in Princeton Wednesday.
